Traffic model will help end delays at the Ky Speedway

By KRISITN SHERRARD The News-Democrat

After receiving national media attention for the traffic gridlock and parking shortage that cast an ugly shadow over its inaugural NASCAR Sprint Cup Series Quaker State 400 last summer, the Kentucky Speedway worked hard since then to make sure that never happens again.

Creasey

Kentucky State Police to implement a multi-million dollar infrastructure project that includes work at both I-71 and the racetrack and has hired a professional design and consulting company to perfect their traffic flow and parking plan.

After evaluating what went wrong at last year's event, the first thing that needed to be done was to widen both I-71 and Hwy. 35, providing more lanes for the traffic to filter off the highway, Kentucky Speedway General Manager Mark Simendinger said at a news conference Wednesday, March 21. Next, the Speedway purchased 173 acres of farmland for additional parking. Officials also identified 50 additional acres of land that could not be used last year because it was too hilly and smoothed it out and graveled areas of grass-only parking so that it can be used in any weather condition, Simendinger said.

"All of those things added together are huge improvements, will make a world of difference and will make good on our pledge that something what like what we experienced last July is never going to happen again," he said.

Sharon faces state ethics violations

By SHARON GRAVES The News-Democrat

Ethics violations have been filed against local conservation officer Dennis Sharon for allegedly using his influence to benefit him and others in his commercial fishing business. Officials said more serious charges could be coming from the Kentucky Attorney General's office and the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife.

A five-member Executive Branch Ethics Commission released a 19 page document alleging nine counts of Sharon using his official position as a Fish and Wildlife Conservation Officer to further his own commercial fishing business, help others avoid prosecution in fishing violations, fishing in restricted waters and fishing without a license. Sharon was notified Sept. 26,

2011, by letter of the investigation and after the commission found there was probable cause to believe violations of KRS Chapter 11A had occurred. The commission voted on March 19 to initiate an administrative proceeding against him. ThechargesagainstSharondate back to April 2007 and occurred in each subsequent year with the final charges being in April 2011. Because the charges came from the Ethics Commission, they are not criminal, Ethics Commission Executive Director John Steffen said. The ethics violations are for unethical use of his official position and not for the actual fishing law violations. However, some charges involve violations in Indiana and those are expected to be criminal, he said.

According to Steffen, Sharon is on a paid investigative leave that could last up to 60 days. The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife must make a decision to terminate or re-instate him after 60 days, Steffen said. The commission is represented by Kathryn H. Gabbart, General Counsel, and Steffen.

Contacted telephone Tuesday, Sharon said he is going to dispute the charges. He is contacting an attorney. "In my mind, there's not wrong-doing whatsoever," he said.

Steffen explained that Sharon has 20 days to respond to the March 19 complaint and then the commission will appoint a hearing officer to hear the case. Once the hearing officer makes a ruling, the commission can accept the ruling, modify it or reject it. Steffen said the hearing could take place sometime within the next three to six months. Sharon could be fined $5,000 on each of the nine counts.

City OKs extending free WiFi

By KRISTIN SHERRARD The News-Democrat

Carrollton City Council agreed to a contract with tech company Powered On to fix the existing problems and to finish installing the city-wide free wireless internet system, known as Wifi.

At the March 12 council meeting, Powered On owner Brent Graves presented a proposal for $2,912.90, which included the purchase of seven outdoor repeaters and the installation of eight antennas, one per week.

Graves also presented a wireless network installation and maintenance agreement, effective for 12 months, stating that the city will purchase all of the required equipment for installation and will negotiate and secure the property owners' permission to install the antennas. The total service cost is $2,940 and will be paid in monthly installments of $245, according to the contract.

Powered On will provide ongoing service and maintenance to each antenna every week, according to the contract. Graves said his firm will provide a website where citizens can report outages, and they will respond within 24 hours. City Attorney Nick Marsh looked over the contracts and suggested making a change to the arbitration wording in the contract. He also advised council that if they install the antennas on private property, they should get an easement so that they can go on to the property at will in case work needs to be done on the antennas. Marsh said this is what he did in Worthville when that city installed its Wifi system, and he has a one-page easement form similar to the one used for water and sewer lines.

Mayor Gene McMurry said he will need help from council getting the easements from property owners. He designated Councilmen Mike Gordon and Kevin Craig as Graves' points of contact because they are easy to get a hold of and they know most everyone in town.

The proposal was approved 5-0, subject to Marsh's approval.

Traffic changes announced for bridge

Changes take effect in April after temporary bridge closure

> By DAVE TAYLOR Landmark News Service

The Indiana Department of Transportation and the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet hosted a public meeting Thursday to announce traffic changes that will take effect next month after the April 25-29 construction-related closure of the Milton-Madison Bridge. Traffic plans were on display during an open house at the Brown Gym in Madison.

The dates of the temporary closure are subject to change depending on weather conditions and river levels.

"Weather permitting those are the dates we are planning for," Aaron Stover said. Stover is project manager for Michael Baker Corp., a company that provides professional engineering and consulting on major construction projects, including the Milton-Madison Bridge Project for transportation officials in the two states.

"Things that could impact that obviously is if we're having a monsoon," Stover said. "If the contractor's not going to be able to work we're not going to be able to close the bridge, so that would be pushed back otherwise. If we are having a big massive flood and the banks of the Ohio are up there's no need to close the bridge for that period of time because they wouldn't be able to work on the bridge anyway. But if the weather cooperates and everything goes as planned we will be having the first closure on April 25th through 29th."

Stover said the greatest challenge involved in the construction to date has been rainfall, which has six high-water events lasting more than 108 days since construction began early in 2011. The bridge will open to traffic in its permanent location on the rehabilitated existing piers several months later than initially envisioned, Stover said.

"Our schedule has been revised," he said. The new bridge was "originally set to open in September of 2012. We are now looking at 2013.' During the planned closure in late April, the project contractor Walsh Construction Company will work around the clock to remove the existing bridge approaches and connect temporary ramps in Milton and Madison.

4-H agent funding to be considered during budget talks

By JEFF MOORE The News-Democrat

A decision on whether Carroll County Fiscal Court will provide "stopgap funding" to fill the local 4-H Extension agent position will come as part of the budget process for fiscal year 2012-13.

At Tuesday's fiscal court meeting, District 2 Magistrate Dean Miller said that while he supports the 4-H program, he remains opposed to the county paying the $46,350 so the University of Kentucky will have to hire an Extension agent for the county's 4-H program.

To meet its state budget, UK's Extension program maintains a list of 29 open positions, only filling the one open the longest when another comes open. Officials with the Extension service say it takes about two years to move up the list.

"If we do it, it will never stop," Miller said. He noted that even without an agent for 4-H that the programs are continuing.

Additionally, Miller said he believes if the county funds this position, another could come open in a couple of years and fiscal court would find itself in the same position again.

Carroll County's 4-H post has been open since Mandy Parker left in 2009. The open position had moved up the list until last year when Agricultural Extension agent Tim Hendrick retired and UK filled that position, moving the 4-H job back to the bottom of the list.

"I prefer to wait," Miller said, adding that the timing is bad because the county is just starting work on its budget for the next fiscal year that begins in July.

Judge-Executive Harold "Shorty" Tomlinson said he knows everyone is frustrated because of the cuts that the state has made and how they are impacting local programs.

District 3 Magistrate Mark Bates pointed out that the county has budgeted but not spent its portion of the salary, which now totals about $38,000 that could be used toward the "stop-gap funding."

But he said he can see waiting to include this as part of the budget considerations for the next year.

District 1 Magistrate Floyd Bowling agreed.

Tomlinson agreed that there is money the county didn't spend because the 4-H position has been open.

Carroll County Extension Council chairman Mike Lewis said that Carroll County has been rated for three agent positions and that the 4-H programs are suffering because there has not been anyone in that full-time job since 2009.

Extension Council member Grover Crawford added that several of the programs that were offered in the past no longer have any participation because there isn't a 4-H agent. He said that if something doesn't happen this year, there will not be any 4-H programs and exhibits at the county fair next year.

"That's why we're here," Crawford said.

Tomlinson said from what he heard in the meeting that everyone supports 4-H. He said fiscal court will now put this request in to consider with everything else as the county develops its budget for next year.

Warning siren bid

Fiscal court voted to tentatively accept a $162,920 bid from J&N Electronics for eight warning sirens and three consoles for the county dispatch to accommodate the equipment to activate them.

Funding for the project comes through a grant with the county paying 13 percent of the cost on the project. Emergency Management Director Ed Webb said two of the sirens will replace original units installed in the 1990s at the National Guard Armory and in Ghent. The remaining six are additional sirens to be located at Martin Road, Easterday Road to serve Camp Kysoc and Christian Academy of Carrollton, Greens Bottom, Butler Park, Mound Hill and on Hwy. 42 West at Harbor Point, he said. Under terms of the grant, the equipment must be installed and the project complete by the end of June to receive the grant

Basketball proclamation

With two teams in the NCAA Final Four, Judge-Executive Harold "Shorty" Tomlinson issued a proclamation Tuesday recognizing Sports Illustrated. com's conclusion that "the geographic midpoint of the college hoops universe is neither Louisville or Lexington, but Carrollton." his proclamation, Tomlinson said the county encourages "all sports fans to display your team colors at home and work and enjoy this fun-filled week of basketball action."

Synthetic drugs

Magistrate Dean Miller said he would like to see fiscal court take some action in the battle against the synthetic drugs. He said the issue came up in the past, but the county has not taken any action, while others in the region have. County Attorney Nick Marsh said he has been looking at what other counties are doing. Judge-Executive Harold "Shorty" Tomlinson said the problem with a local ordinance is that it doesn't have any teeth. He said the state can make a difference if the General Assembly passes a bill that makes these drugs felony offenses. County Jailer Mike Humphrey said these drugs are one of the worst problems they are facing now at the detention center. "Something needs to be done," Miller said. He added that if enough counties take action, maybe the state will take action.

Cost of Kentucky courthouses questioned by lawmakers

By Scott Wartman The Kentucky Enquirer

Concerns about state debt has slowed construction on courthouses around Kentucky after a decade where the state built or expanded 60 courthouses.

Since 2005, the state has completed 26 judicial centers and 14 remain under way at a cost of $590 mil-

The General Assembly hasn't funded new courthouses, however, in two years and doesn't have any new ones funded in the proposed Senate and House two-year budgets being debated.

The courthouse construction that started under Chief Justice Joseph Lambert came under more scrutiny this session of the General Assembly during debate over a proposed debt ceiling. Senate Bill 1, which would have set Kentucky's debt limit at six percent of the general fund, passed the Republican-controlled Senate and stalled in the Democratic-controlled

In a tea party-organized rally for Senate Bill 1, Congressional candidate and Lewis County Judgeexecutive Thomas Massie urged the state to stop building courthouses and use the money to invest in infrastructure and other

"They look out of place they're so huge," Massie said of the new courthous-

Sen. Joe Bowen, R-Owensboro, who authored Senate Bill 1, said he would support research into the consolidation of courthouses among counties.

"When we're talking about state debt, particularly when we are talking about bonding used for brick and mortar projects, when we bond for brick and mortar projects, it takes away from our ability to fund programs and services," Bowen said. "We're obligated to fund the debt."

These new courthouses, however, replace outdated ones that many say lacked security and space. In some rural counties, such as Pendleton and Owen, they replace courthouses that date back to before the Civil War. The court system in move from the one courtroom courthouse it has occupied since 1857 into a $12.5 million, 33,000 square-foot building with golden domes and three courtrooms.

Like with other counties, security in the old courthouse concerned judges and other workers in the courthouse. Prisoners and judges used the same elevator. Owen County's old courthouse still doesn't have a metal detector, said Judge-executive Carolyn Keith. Keith worked as the Owen County Circuit Clerk from 1988 to 2005.

'When I was the circuit clerk, I wanted a metal detector," Keith said. "On days where there was judicial court, I have no doubt people were armed sitting there in the courtroom. In the 21st Century, with the anger management problems some citizens seem

Work will commence at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday, April 25, according to Stover. "You may expect that those construction activities will be noisy," he said. "That's one of the unfortunate consequences of having to work during five days is you have to work fast and you have to work at all hours of the night. The loudest activities are going to occur during that first night when they're doing the actual demolition. They'll have to be breaking up concrete on those approach spans." Stover said the Madison City Council has granted a noise variance for the five-day closure period "in order to get this done in expedited fashion," Stover

After the bridge reopens on Monday, April 30, the following traffic plan will be in place:

• In Madison, the intersection of Indiana Hwy. 56 and Ferry Street will convert to a 3-way stop.

• A 3-way stop will be placed at Ferry Street and Vaughn Drive near the Key West Shrimp House in Madison. No parking will be allowed on Ferry Street. There will be three, 15-minute parking spaces at the Key West Shrimp House designated for dropping people off at the restaurant.

• In Milton, northbound traffic from U.S. 421 onto the temporary ramp leading to the bridge will be free-flowing with no stop

• There will be a stop sign at the end of the temporary ramp in Milton for southbound traffic.

• There will be a stop sign for vehicles traveling from the Milton boat ramp onto Ferry Street.

• Ferry service will be provided during the closure to transport emergency services vehicles across the Ohio River. The Milton boat ramp will be closed for public access during this time.

• The stop at Hwy. 36 for southbound traffic from Ferry Street in Milton will be maintained as it is now.

During the planned fiveday closure, ferry service will be provided to carry emergency vehicles across the river from the Milton boat ramp to a temporary boat ramp at Ferry Street in Madison. The Milton boat ramp will be closed to boaters during the closure period.

During the closure, drivers will detour to the Markland Locks and Dam

Bridge, 26 miles upstream, or Louisville, 46 miles downstream.

Drivers are expected to use the temporary ramps for about nine months while construction continues on the temporary piers and new truss bridge just west of the existing bridge. "If water gets as high as it did last year when Vaughn Drive was underwater at the construction site, then you will have to use the detour routes (Louisville or Markland Dam) and go around the project," Stover said.

Shifting traffic to the temporary ramps is the first in a series of steps to ensure traffic keeps moving during construction. The community initially faced a year-long bridge closure, but innovative design and construction methods reduced the closures to a total of 10 days. Construction began in early 2011 to replace the 20-foot-wide Milton-Madison Bridge. A new 2,400-foot-long steel truss bridge will be built on temporary piers, then slid into place on top of the existing piers which are being strengthened to meet modern standards. Once complete, the new wider bridge will lie within the footprint of the existing bridge.

Senate passes budget that limits state debt but offers key services

hile we passed several important bills this week, my time was dominated with review of the House's proposal, House Bill 265, for the state's two-year budget.

The plan will be roughly $9 billion per year or $18 billion total. In that, the Senate proposal carries about 6.58 percent authorized debt which is lower than the House's proposal of 6.8 percent and proposal, we recognize that it is bad public policy to bond or restructure or borrow money to pay for current expenses.

tural imbalance. Unlike the governor's

The Senate crafted a financially responsible budget that reflects what every family in the Commonwealth has had to face during the last several years - less money. We needed to decide what was necessary as opposed to what would be nice to have. People decide between paying their mortgage or going on vacation, paying their utility bill or going to the movies. While the Senate budget provides for social services, education, public safety and necessary infrastructure, we are mindful that we cannot afford some things that, while nice or even beneficial to have, are not ultimately critical. Of course, as the nation's and our economies improve, we will continue to evaluate and review our revenues

as compared to our needs.

The Senate passed Senate Bill 134 which would facilitate returning military who have a HVAC specialty to obtain certification in Kentucky. SB 134 allows a current or former member of the United States Armed Forces to qualify for a journeyman license if he or she has been trained as a journeyman by the military and actively served in that occupation during his or her military service. We are grateful to the men and women who serve and it is not just to make their transition back to civilian life more difficult.

The Senate also passed several other bills to lay the groundwork for a prosperous future. If you ask business-owners what kinds of things the government can do to help them, one of their top answers will be to tell government to get out of the way. Senate Bill 4 applies a moratorium on administrative regulations as the governor determines which regulations to keep in place, amended or repealed altogether. The governor can then reissue the regulations he deems important and these will go through the usual legislative review. The purpose of SB 4 is to rein in what many feel is out-of-control redtape. We need to look at these regulations with fresh eyes and make sure they still have a constructive purpose.

This week, we will be entering in a conference committee with the House to hammer out differences in our budget proposals. As Chairman of the Transportation Committee, I have been working for several weeks on the state's road plan. The Senate will be voting on the plan next week.

Sen. Ernie Harris. R-Crestwood, represents the 26th District including Carroll, Henry, Oldham, and Trimble counties, as well as a portion of Jefferson

Relay for Life pageant supporters are thanked

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank a number of individuals who helped make the Relay for Life Pageants 2012 a great success. With everyone's help, "Team Robbins" raised nearly $5,000. First, I would like to thank every contestant for entering our pageants, without you the event would have been impossible. I hope that everyone had a great time and enjoyed being a contestant; the judges had mentioned what a difficult decision it was to choose the court for each category. I hope that every contestant gained experience and a fun, enjoyable time at the pageants. We hope to have you again next year

Next, I would like to thank the parents of those participants that were able to let their child enter. This takes a lot of patience, time commitment, and sometimes puts an emotional toll on you, so thank you for enduring a somewhat stressful, yet seemingly enjoyable time for your children and for Relay for Life.

I would like to thank every member of Team Robbins for all of their dedication, commitment, and hard work that each and every member put forth in order to make the pageants a success. The monthly meetings, the preparation, the fundraising, and the stress that each member has gone through is truly a sign of dedication on everyone's part, and I thank you for enduring all of this for a successful and long day of pageantry. So, thanks to Annie Valentine, Christina Schadler, Nancy Robbins, Debbie Roth, Joe Roth, Josh Roth, Tonya Perkins, James McGlennen,

I would also like to thank everyone that believed in my idea to put this pageant on in the first place, it started as an idea and blossomed into a reality.

Our goal was to at least go beyond what we raised last year, which was almost $3,000. We went above and beyond my goal, and that makes me truly proud, it also makes me eager to go even further for next year. My experiences as a pageant coordinator will never be forgotten, and I will continue this tradition every year, in hopes of the event to become bigger and better.

Carroll wins home opener vs. Trimble Lady Panthers come

By KRISTIN SHERRARD The News-Democrat

The Panthers jumped out to a 5-0 lead and managed to hold off a late-surging Raiders squad to get the win, 5-4, in their home opener Thursday, March

"I'm really happy about that because we've had trouble with (closing out games) in the past," Carroll first year head coach Josh Mefford said. "We've had those bad innings where we've kicked the ball around, but this time they hit the ball ... We kept our heads in it, and we made the plays we were supposed

Carroll scored its first run in the bottom of the second. Zach Beckham was hit in the back with a pitch, giving the Panthers a runner on base. He stole second and was in scoring position when Brandon Franklin came up and hit a two-out, RBI single to center field.

The Panthers' big inning came in the third. Leadoff Austin Dunn earned a walk and Jacob Wise moved him over with a sacrifice bunt. Dillon Craig hit an RBI single past first base, 2-0. John Michael Adams followed with a single over third base, putting two runners on for Trey Boles. Boles hit an RBI double to left field, 3-0. Then Adams scored on a passed ball, putting the Panthers up by four. Trimble finally managed to stop the bleeding, as pitcher Zack Beard struck out the next two batters.

Neither team could get things going in the fourth, as the game rolled on into the fifth. In the bottom half of the inning, Adams started things off with a single to right centerfield. He advanced to second on a stolen base and on to third when Boles was called out on a dropped third strike play. Adams scored on a passed ball, giving Carroll a 5-0 advantage.

But the Raiders would not go down without a fight. Jordon Tingle hit a single down the third base line, and Daniel Haney followed with a single of his own into right centerfield. Dylan Staples batted in Trimble's first run of the game with an RBI single to third base. With one out, Conner Beard hit a double to left field, scoring two runs, 5-3. Carroll County managed to get the next two batters out, ending the scoring spree.

The Panthers went down in order in the bottom of the sixth, as the game headed into the seventh. With two outs, Tingle stepped back up to the plate and hit a grounder to the shortstop and managed to beat out the throw. Haney hit another single, putting runners at the corners.

Haney attempted to steal and catcher Zach Beckham's throw to second sailed into the outfield, allowing Tingle to score, 5-4.

However, Beckham would vindicate himself on the very next play. Staples hit the ball to the shortstop and beat out the throw to first. First baseman Keifer McIntyre threw home to Beckham, who tagged out Haney as he got caught up between third and home.

Trimble head coach Frank Ragland said Haney got caught up in the excitement as he rounded third too wide, something that can happen to anyone. But that play "wasn't the difference in the game.

"It was one of those things we didn't get our bats going until late," Ragland said. "I thought we would have hit (Boles) better than early on, but we didn't. We finally got our bats woke up and put some runs across the board. The real difference in the game was they fielded balls at them and we didn't. We made a few mistakes defensively that gave them a few runs and that was the difference.'

Ragland said he thought Beard and reliever Robbie Brooks did an excellent job on the mound and credited his team for not giving up.

"We gave ourselves a shot," he said. "If we can learn from this, we'll be OK, but it's never easy to lose when you get that close. We played a tight game at Henry County the other night, but I think we're getting better every time we step out on the field and we'll see how the rest of the season goes. But we're two games in to a 34-35 game season, so we're long as we see improvement, I think we'll be pretty tough."

Mefford said although Boles did not pitch his best stuff, he had a good overall game against the Raiders. He also praised Dunn and got on base with three walks his first three times to bat and hit a solid fly ball to right field in his final

close, but just short against Lady Raiders

By KRISTIN SHERRARD The News-Democrat

The Carroll County Lady Panthers battled back from a two-run deficit, but ultimately fell 3-2 to border rival Trimble County Wednesday at home.

Trimble first-year head coach Tanya Black was overflowing with excitement following the game. "Our first two games we hit the ball pretty decent, but just couldn't get over that hump and this time we fought hard and did well, very proud of them," she said.

The Lady Raiders jumped out to a 2-0 lead before the Lady Panthers tied them up in the bottom of the fourth inning. But good hitting by Trimble and miscues by Carroll allowed the Lady Raiders to re-take the lead in the top of the fifth and hold on for the victory.

Trimble's Jessie Dunlap opened the game with a double to centerfield. She advanced to third on a passed ball and scored on an RBI single by Paige Black, 1-0. The Lady Panthers sat not far enough into it. As down the next three batters to end the top of the first. The Lady Raiders came knocking again in the top of the third and the lineup back to the top of the order. Jessie Dunlap hit a single up the middle and advanced to second on another passed Wise for their play. Dunn ball. McKenzie Dunlap hit an RBI single to left field giving Trimble a 2-0 advantage. Katie Temple and Emily Black followed with a pair of walks. With one out and bases loaded, Carroll County made a pitching change, subbing out starter Kayley Perry for Sarah Hawkins.

Hawkins and the Carroll defense managed to force a pop up to first base and a groundout at shortstop to escape the inning.

The Lady Panthers took that momentum into their bats in the bottom of the third. Leadoff Kayla Williamson singled to left field and Mackenzie Ogden reached on a Trimble Pinch-runner Ashton Marksberry subbed in for Ogden and stole second base. The throw sailed into the outfield and Williamson scored. Marksberry was thrown out at home plate, which Carroll head coach and third-base coach Dennis Hawkins would say after the game was his mistake.

Jessie Dunlap hit a triple to right center in the top of the fourth, but the Lady Raiders were unable to capitalize.

Carroll started the bottom of the fourth with a single to shortstop by Hawkins. Pinch-runner Houston Lindsey stole second, and Michaela Culver

Microwave works for honey-dijon grouper recipe

e've had a kitchen mess lately, and I do mean mess. I guess I didn't realize just how messy and time consuming it can get when remodeling the kitchen.

This is because once the cabinets are in, you have to wait to get the counter top installed. Believe it or not, eating out too much can get old really fast.

Lonnie's Lagniappe

Lonnie Sundermeyer

Once the cabinets were in, and I filled them with the dishes, Bob put makeshift tops on them so I could at least prepare a home cooked meal.

The problem was all I had was my microwave. I'm probably like most people, I primarily use my microwave to re-heat foods, melt butter and such. Maybe a couple of times, I may have tried cooking chicken or beef. But frankly, the chicken just didn't come out to my liking. It was a little too dry.

I've made a lot of honey-dijon chicken in my years of catering, but only on the stove and in the oven, never in the microwave. I had some frozen grouper in my freezer. I decided that maybe I could use the sauce that I make for the chicken, but with the grouper instead. So I got out the instruction book for the microwave and found the instructions for cooking fish. Surely, if I followed the time limits they had for cooking fish, I could come up with a really good meal.

Usually with my chicken, I will use equal parts of honey and Dijon mustard; however, with the fish, I thought that would be too much honey, so I reduced that amount by a great deal. I give you my:

Honey-Dijon Grouper 1 pound grouper fillets or other white fish

1/4 cup butter

This grouper recipe turned out tender and juicy when prepared in the microwave. The honey-dijon mix made a delicious meal when served with a baked potato and aspara-

1 tbsp. dijon mustard

2 tsp. honey (get some of our good local honey)

2 tsp. fresh lemon juice 1/4 tsp. salt

1/8 tsp. dried thyme leaves

Arrange grouper in a 9-inch square, microwaveable baking dish with thickest portions of fish toward outside of dish. Set

Place butter in 1 cup glass measuring cup. Microwave at high for 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 minutes, or until butter melts. Stir in mustard, honey, lemon juice, salt and thyme. Mix well. Pour over grouper. Cover and refrigerate until ready to cook, about an hour. Cover with waxed paper and microwave at high for 8-12 minutes, depending on the wattage of your microwave. I only had to cook mine for 8 minutes. Spoon sauce over fish and rotate the dish twice, unless you have a turntable in your microwave, which rotates the dish for you. The fish turned out to be very good and moist. It was especially good for Bob because the house didn't have a fishy odor, which is the reason I don't cook fish at home much. Bob cannot stand the smell of fish cooking. I also steamed some asparagus with a little Kosher salt in a steamer bag. My baked potatoes were cooked in a cloth bag especially for cooking potatoes in the microwave (given to me by a Florida friend), which I learned is the best way to cook them.

The best part of all this, clean-up was minimal. It was not hot in the kitchen, and it all took less than 15 minutes. It was a great, healthy meal. Next time, I think I just might try chicken. Enjoy!

Journey to Calvary

Stations of the Cross can help practice the forgiveness Jesus demonstrated

uring the season of Lent people do a lot of sacrifices, giving-ups and prayerful practices.

One of the things I usually do everyday during Lent is the Stations of the Cross. The 14 Stations of the Cross and the resurrection help me to walk with Jesus to Calvary. Usually I don't use any book to pray, instead stand sometimes in silence in front of the picture looming and reflecting on the event.

On the 10th station I stand looking at the creator being stripped of His garments by the soldiers. Everyday I hear incidents of people being insulted or humiliated. What a humiliation was it for Jesus to be stripped of in public. Jesus didn't complain. He stood like a lamb in front of the soldiers. Sometimes when I hear words of humiliation or actions

I consider them as nothing comparing them to that of Jesus.

When I look at the picture of the crucified Jesus on the 12th station my eyes get wet. I think for a moment the hands of Jesus that performed miracles and the feet of Jesus that walked a long distance preaching and doing good. They are now helplessly crucified.

When people whom we help turn against us and undermine us or our family how do we respond? We hear the sermon of Jesus from the cross in seven sentences. The first prayer was to forgive Luke 23: 34 "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do." Is that easy to say? Let the same value of forgiveness reflect in our life style. Let the forgiveness flow from Calvary to our home and work place.

At the end of the stations, I feel spiritfilled when I reflect upon the resurrection of Jesus. No more cross, falling, humiliation, crucifixion but everlasting

The cross we are carrying may be heavy now, sometimes too heavy, but there is an everlasting joy and peace waiting for us where there is no more crying or pain. Let the preparations we do during Lent help us to enjoy the resurrection peacefully.

Champions warns of 'Skittling,' new violent video game

By JEFF MOORE The News-Democrat

fad called new 'Skittling" and a video game based around shooting fellow students are two items Champions for a Drug Free Carroll County warned educators could be heading into the commu-

At Thursday night's Carroll County Board of Education meeting, Champions coordinator Matt Lipe said he learned about these two potential dangers for children during a training session he attended recently in Richmond.

Lipe explained that "Skittling," which has shown up as close as Nicholasville, involves students soaking Skittles candy in vodka overnight, then straining the pieces of candy out the next day. This leaves a fruit juice color in the vodka, he said that can disguise the alcohol so students can carry it

Because vodka doesn't have an odor like other alcohol, Lipe said students can consume it without being caught, unless a teacher or other adult tastes it.

The other potential worry for teachers is a new video

Carroll County Schools Superintendent Lisa James honored Sheree Richter from the high school and Beth Wallace from the middle school with Champions for Kids awards for their work on Operation Preparation. James said the two lined up individuals from the community for 150 to 175 students for the program, which gave each child a half hour to spend with a mentor. James praised their work for getting so many people involved. As part of the Operation Preparation program, she noted, volunteers also had to participate in a half-hour training session before visiting with students. The presentation was made Thursday night during the Carroll County Board of Education meeting.

game that's expected to be on the market this year.

Lipe said School Shooter 2012 provides players the chance to take guns that were used at Columbine and Virginia Tech shootings to kill as many students and teachers as possible before killing themselves.

"It's amazing they market this stuff," he said.

While some stores are saying they will not sell the video game, Lipe said the drug problem facing Carroll County now is opiate-based pain medication. The main medications he sees on the streets locally are hydrocodone, Percocet, Oxycodone and Oxycotin. Some people who get started on these drugs do so because of an injury, Roberts said. Those who continue to use these "have to have more and more" to get the same effects. Over time, he said, it will take two to do what one does today. Why don't people just quit? Roberts said it's because long-term use makes the body quit producing endorphins that kill pain. If they quit taking an opiate-based drug, then every minor ache and pain is magnified for three to five days, he explained.

He said he has seen prisoners coming off the medications curled up in pain at the jail as they go through withdrawal.

Opiate-based medications are easy to get, Roberts said. He explained that many users go "doctor shopping" to get as many pills as they can. They may go to a doctor in one town and an emergency room miles up the road to get prescriptions.

On the street, he said the Chlon earns medical

Doctor of Medicine degree

pills sell for about $1 a milligram. This puts Oxycotin at $80 each.

He said he has seen people in Carrollton who use four or five a day, which becomes expensive.

In addition to resorting to dealing, many addicts also will turn to stealing to fund the habit.

Roberts has a warning for anyone who has any of these medications left in the medicine cabinet. "Get them out of your house," he said. Users will hurt homeowners to get their hands on the drugs. Roberts said they can be turned in at the local boxes at Carrollton Police Department for proper disposal.

Because opiate-based medications are so expensive, many are turning to heroin, which is in the same family but much cheaper on the street.

A gram of heroin sells for about $120, he explained. That can be cut into tenths and sold for $40 each on the street.

A user can sell three of these to be able to purchase more and have seven left for their own use.

Roberts said heroin carries with it the potential for overdoses. Each dealer can cut the heroin, and each one can make it a different strength. Someone who is used to a weaker cut of heroin can easily overdose if they purchase from someone else that doesn't cut it as much. The other area of concern today, especially for school-aged children, are the synthetic drugs that pass themselves off as alternatives to marijuana

Sometimes called bath salts or incense, many of these synthetic drugs can be purchased in stores.

While they are marked "not for human consumption," Roberts said young people are using them because they can be sold legally.

Roberts said they are dangerous. He knows of at least one local youth that landed in the hospital at Louisville for several days after trying these synthetic drugs.

Only six or seven of the synthetic drugs are not illegal in Kentucky, out of 297 they now use. The legislature is now considering a bill that would make more of these illegal. However, he said when they do, the makers will create 300 new ones outside the law.

"We're kind of chasing the ball on that," he said.

who care Angotti for them. Keeping a close interactive relationship is one of the most important things you do with children.

Here are some ideas for you as you as a parent especially when parenting youth who have gone through rough times and may not be as receptive to you as you might wish.

 Delight in your children. Greet them affectionately each day. Show that you enjoy them.

• Build trust. Let children know that they can count on you. Respond promptly to a child who is crying. Tell children when you are going to leave the room. Keep your promises.

· Slow down and spend quality time with your children every day. · Use caring words.

Along with those words, use a sensitive tone and control the volume of your voice. For example, when comforting an upset child, you might say, "You are having a hard time. I can tell by your tears that you're feeling sad. Let's sit down together and figure out how to help you feel • Offer children opportunities to make decisions whenever possible. Give children two or three clear alternatives when a choice is theirs to make. You are showing that you respect their decision-making skills.

 Set predictable, consistent daily routines. Establish a few simple, reasonable, positive rules for behavior. Always follow through with consequences when a rule is broken. Children need to know what to expect and where their limits are.

 Consider your child's behavior from her viewpoint. Children have reasons for their actions, whether or not those reasons are clear to adults. Before you decide on a method of discipline, put yourself in your child's situation. She may not have the language to express her frustration so she acts on her feelings in an unacceptable way.

 Even when it is difficult, continue trying to build a positive relationship. Adjusting to a new home just takes a while sometimes. Misbehavior or withdrawal are often tests to find out whether you will stick with the children or give up. Try to focus on their positive characteristics. If your child is giving you a difficult time or seems out of control after everything you have tried over a long period, you may want to check with a mental health professional. This person will be able to determine other factors that might be influencing your child's behavior, such as drugs, alcohol or other problems. By providing regular and consistent care, you help children learn that they can trust you to comfort them when they are tired, upset, or frightened. With your calm, patient, loving presence, children learn to deal with all of the changes in their lives. This information was provided by Dr. Carole Gnatuk, UK Extension Specialist for Child Development. Source is Dodge, D. T. (2010). Teaching Strategies, www. teachingstrategies.com.

4-H Camp counselor opportunities

4-H Camp, set for July

2-5, is not only an opportunity for young people to experience the wonder and fun 4-H has to offer, but it also provides leadership development for adults and 14-17 year olds.

Adult counselors are vital to 4-H Camp. ACs, for short, must be 18 years old or older and attend camp at no cost. ACs are assigned with supervising 15-20 campers, aged 9-13.

All potential adult counselors must complete and pass a volunteer packet, including a background check, in order to qualify for the position. If you are a parent with children going to 4-H Camp, and you wish to become an adult counselor, one of vour children will attend 4-H Camp for free.

Remember, AC spots are limited, so do not miss out on this opportunity. Teen counselors (ages 15-17) and Counselors-in-Training (Age 14) assist adult counselors and camp staff with a wide variety of tasks.

From assisting in classes and games to helping supervise campers, teen counselors and CITs are valuable assets to the camp experience. Both TCs and CITs attend camp at a discounted cost of $80.

There are a limited number of counselor positions, and they will be filled on a first-come, first-serve basis, provided each person successfully completes the application process. All counselors must attend a counselor training in June. If you cannot attend this training, you cannot be a 4-H Camp counselor.

Applications for each of the three counselor positions can be picked up at the Carroll County Extension Office.

They must be returned to the Extension office by May 16. For more information on becoming a 4-H camp counselor, contact the Extension office at (502) 732-7030.

Rand says emergency measures will help area's tornado victims Rep. Rick Rand, D- one was used - verifying the department for three members in announcing legislation that would assist owners of buildings damaged in the March 2 tornadoes with tax relief. The bill would also help schools and staff suffering with potential loss of funds due to absences caused by the disaster.

The bill has bipartisan support as demonstrated by the other members who helped announce the legislation including Majority Leader Rocky Adkins, D-Sandy Hook, Rep. John Will Stacy, D-West Liberty, Speaker Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, Senate Majority Leader Robert Stivers, R-Manchester, Sen. Tom Jensen, R-London, and Rep. Hubert Collins, D-Wittensville.

Under the proposal, buildingowners in Trimble and all 21 Kentucky counties declared disaster areas by the president, could recover the sales tax paid on their building materials to repair or replace any structure damaged in the disaster.

The buildings must be repaired or rebuilt in the county in which it was damaged.

The owners would send all sales receipts to the Department of Revenue along with an information sharing document from their contractor - if

Bedford, joined House the purchase of materiand Senate leaders and als. In addition, owners would submit documentation from either FEMA or an insurance company authenticating that the work was performed on a home or building damaged from the March 2nd event within the disaster

The Department of Revenue, after processing the information, would issue a check refunding the sales tax to the building owner.

"This measure will encourage our people to rebuild in their communities and help restore economic vitality to devastated areas," said Rep. Rand. "Providing a tax refund to building owners will help kick start our reconstruction efforts and will be a great motivation to people still struggling with the realities of the devastation."

"This is a real-world solution that would quickly help those most in need," said Rep. Stumbo. "I cannot think of a better way to help these communities get back on their feet."

Owners can submit receipts for refunds to years, or until March 2,

2015."While in session, the legislature has an opportunity to help communities rebuild and give them some relief from the costs as well as an incentive to stay in their home counties," said Rep. Rand. "We believe this legislation will help the thousands of people begin that process more quickly." The bill also contained provisions for schools closed because of torna-

House Bill 165 passed by a vote of 96-0 and is now at the Senate for consideration.

Speedway

Construction should be complete by mid-May at the latest, he said.

Now that there are more places to park, the Speedway needed to address its strategic planning operation. Enter Stantec, a worldwide engineering firm that uses a traffic simulation model to calculate a number of different "what if" scenarios.

Consulting Senior Associate Tom Creasey said the computer program microscopically simulates individual vehicles moving through the network, both pre-race inbound and post-race outbound. The company has used the model in a number of different studies, including the two-way conversion of First and Brook streets in Louisville and is currently being used around King's Island in Cincinnati, Ohio, he said.

Simendinger said he about Stantec through the Department of Highways. He interviewed three companies with this kind of tool in August and ultimately selected Simendinger said it took months to build the model with every detail associated with the Kentucky Speedway, from the existing road network to the proposed road network to the proposed parking lots. The next step was to come up with a list of assumptions of the incoming fans' activity, including which direction people will be coming from, what time they will arrive and what other factors, like weather, will affect them.

"There's no such thing as one model," he said. "This is a tool that we plug in a set of assumptions to see what's going to happen, and generally what we'll do is we'll pick something such as stress in an area and see how much it can take, what it can take and then we try to figure those things out."

The purpose of the model is to assess the traffic management plan and to help them tweak it and to help them idenfity a likely range of scenarios so they can bracket a very likely possibility of what to expect and to plan accordingly, Creasey said.

Simendinger said they first ran a base scenario using what they thought was the most likely traffic pattern people will use. Stantec ran the scenario and came back with "no queues or delays whatso-

Then, they decided to compress the model, meaning people left earlier to come to the track. In this scenario, the model found backups on I-71 southbound of only two, five, nine and 14 minutes in the middle of the day. "All of which are very respectable times," Simendinger said. "For us to be able to achieve those times in a compressed scenario makes us feel pretty good.'

The model allows the speedway to determine how many lots need to be open at a time, how quickly each parking lot will fill up, the average speed on the different roadways, etc.

"We've got probably enough extra parking for probably closing in on 20,000 additional cars more than what we had last year, and they're in various locations," Simendinger said. As a result, they needed to figure out the new capacities for every parking lot, as well as the best way to manage the extra lanes of traffic coming off the inter-

The model also gives them a number of cars parked per minute needed in order to eliminate backups. The model allows them to simulate the traffic and determine what needs to be done to achieve these goals, such as adding more parking attendants or creating a second entrance into a lot.

"Ultimately we don't want cars backing out of the lot, back into the roadways and back out on I-71," Creasey said. "So how efficiently we can process those parkers is one of the key concepts of one of the things we're using the model to determine."

According to the model, there is not an optimal time to arrive at the speedway. "You should have smooth sailing any time of day," Simendinger said. The general manager said they so strongly believe in the model that they are anticipating people will have more time than they probably need to get there. Because of this, the gates will be open earlier and the Speedway will have entertainment, food and beverage stations, and restrooms available for guests when they arrive.

"As you saw in that compressed scenario model, there were very few queues," he said. "There was just one small queue in the middle of the day on I-71 so according to the model, it should be pretty good all day long."

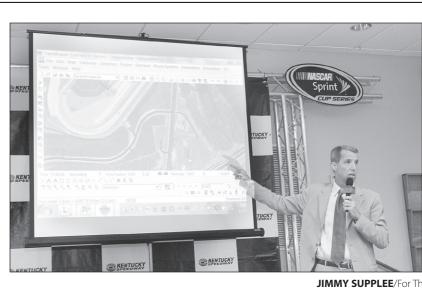

Simendingersaidanother goal this year is to improve communication with fans to make them aware of any backups that may occur because of unforeseen circumstances, such as a flat tire. The Speedway will be using their information radio station, 1620AM, and social media to update fans more frequently on traffic conditions and entertainment information.

There are still tickets available, and Simendinger said he is encouraged by the sales so far and anticipates having as good a crowd as last year. He estimated that well over two-thirds of the fans that took advantage of the ticket exchange program last year chose to come back to Kentucky Speedway rather than another motor track.

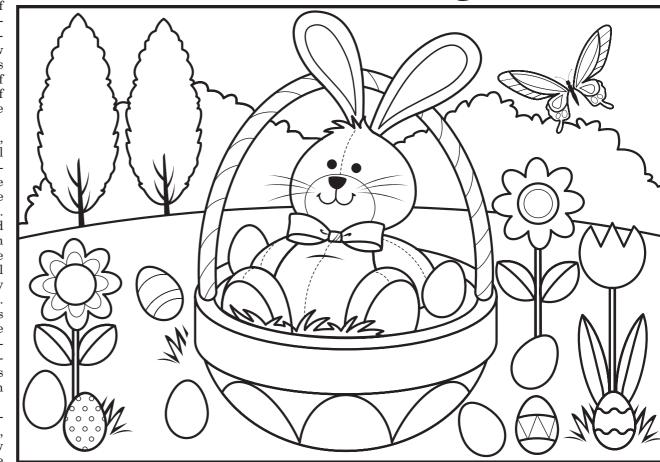

Simendinger said his goal is for every person that showed up last year to come back for this year's race on June 30.

"I wish we could go back in time and we could pull people out of their cars and not make them wait," Simendinger said. "I feel terrible about that, (but) I can't do that. There's nothing I can do about that now. The only thing I can do, as I've said all along, is we can resolve ourselves that from this point forward we will do whatever it takes to make sure that doesn't happen again. So we put together a plan, we're executing that plan and we have taken a lot of steps to try to communicate that plan to the media and also to our fans because everybody that is a fan of this sport deserves to know we are giving it a 150 percent

"... We have an area that is very, very enthusiastic about motor sports. They love it, and that's a great thing and that's why I love working at Kentucky Speedway ... We're building a world-class facility here, and in retrospect, we needed more lanes, we needed more parking spaces, we needed more people, we needed more of everything and that was kind of the takeaway and that's what we have taken forward to this year."

High school looks to hire coach first, then AD

By KRISTIN SHERRARD The News-Democrat

With the recent retirement announcement of athletic director and girls basketball head coach Randy Mefford, Carroll County High School has big shoes to fill.

Principal John Leeper said his first priority is to find a new head basketball coach. "We feel like that position is the one that needs to be filled the earliest because it has a more direct impact on our teenagers' lives," he said. "That being the case, we want them hired first so they can begin scheduling summer workouts, so they can begin doing open gyms in the spring, so they can begin working with our girls and getting a solid plan to develop in the summer and get us ready for basketball season next year."

Once a basketball coach is in place, an athletic director will be hired. The high school also is looking to hire new golf coaches for the girls and boys teams.

The athletic director position has been posted on the Carroll County School Districts website, the KHSAA website and on the Kentucky High School basketball association web server. "We've advertised it as well as we can with all of the Kentucky representatives," Leeper said. "We are getting some people that are finding out about it over in Indiana and even as far Leeper said about 20 people have contacted him with interest in the job. A lot of people are interested in whether or not the girls basketball coaching position and the athletic director position are one in the same. He said that is not necessarily the case.

away as Iowa."

"Additionally, many people think Randy Mefford has been making a very large salary doing both of these jobs and that is simply not the case," the principal said. "He was making a very modest amount and doing a lot of work for just a little bit of pay. Essentially what we would love to have is someone who is already teaching, who would do the athletic director position as well as teach. But that doesn't necessarily have to be that

According to the KHSAA job posting for athletic director, Carroll County High School is seeking a qualified individual with an athletic background and someone who has knowledge of KHSAA rules. The school may have a teaching position that may be tied in with the athletic director position. The position was posted on Feb. 22, the night Mefford announced his retirement. Mefford said the new athletic director should have knowledge of all the different sports offered at the high school, as well as knowledge of the KHSAA rules. "You've got to find someone good at working with people and being organized," he said. Mefford is under contract through June 30 and said he will be available to help the new hire get accustomed to

For the new girls basketball coach, Mefford said they need to be knowledgeable about the game and have previous coaching experience, preferably girls. They also need to be a person with good character, someone who will be a role model for the student-athletes.

Ideally, the new head coach will be in the building all day long with the kids and then spend the additional time with them after school to develop them "not only as athletes, but as individuals and people," Leeper said. "Any principal will tell you they want the best possible coach that they can have. That's exactly what we want," he said. "Is it better if the coach is a teacher in the building? Yes. Randy Mefford would agree. If he's in the building all day long and is with those kids all day long, it makes him a better coach in the afternoon."

Even though he was doing athletic director work, Mefford was still visible in the hallways and in the cafeteria at lunch and would check on the girls during the day, Leeper said. However, he also acknowledged that this does not always work. For example, it would not be fair to the girls to hire a teacher and tell them they also have to coach.

Leeper said he is looking for someone that is innovative and energetic as the new AD. "We're looking for somebody that can lead, not just a small group of people, but can lead a community," he said. "Because our athletic director at Carroll County High School is heavily involved, not just in high school programs, but with middle school programs and elementary and rec league programs. So we need somebody that can really promote the core values of Carroll County athletics across the

There is no deadline on the AD, but Leeper said he would like to hire the girls basketball coach by the end of April and the athletic director as quickly as possible after that. Interested applicants must send in a resume and fill out an application on the district website. A college degree is preferred and a teaching certificate is preferred, but not required. Applicants need to have an understanding of how to teach, both the students as well as coaches, Leeper said. Leeper said Mefford will not necessarily be involved in the hiring process, but he is involved in the recruiting process because he is so wellknown around the state. A committee of teachers will make a recommendation to site-based, which will make the ultimate decision.

The position is salaried and pays $7,500. Leeper said once people find out the job does not pay a large salary, some of their interest wanes. "Having been an athletic director before myself, it's something you do because you love a community," he said. "It's because you love athletics. It's because you love what athletics does for our youth today and the opportunity that it provides for them to learn so many things beyond the classroom. It's like any coaching position, the pay is not worth it. You have to find a lot of satisfaction in all of the other things that go on with developing athletes."

Sharon

These charges are not criminal, Steffen stressed in a telephone interview, but could not rule out there could be criminal charges filed by the Kentucky Attorney General's office or from the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife.

Carroll County Commonwealth Attorney Jim Crawford said in a phone interview that he had been approached about similar charges in the past. Because Sharon is a former Kentucky State Trooper whom Crawford has worked with in the past, he said a special prosecutor would need to be appointed. "I did not think it was anything I could get involved in," he said.

Crawford was not aware if a special prosecutor has been appointed.

Paddlefish roe (caviar) is at the heart of the case and according to Steffen a lot of this product is sold, packaged and sent to Russia and Japan because the Caspian Sea has been so over-fished they cannot get the quantity of caviar needed. "They are one link in a chain," Steffen said of Sharon and his designated helper, Kenneth Burns and their fishing operation. "I don't know if Russia and Japan knows this comes out of the Ohio River."

"Paddlefish are protected for a reason," Steffen explained. There is a lot of money to be made and Kentucky could follow suit of other states and not allow paddlefish roe harvesting because they are declining in numbers, he added.

"Paddlefish are important because they are one of three egg-bearing (roe) species in the order of sturgeons, native to the United States that are allowed to be commercially exported for their eggs and processed into caviar", according to a U. S. Fish and Wildlife

The charges

Count one of the Ethics Commission alleges that in April 2007 Sharon participated in the multi-state law enforcement operation called "Skid Roe" concerning the commercial fishing of paddlefish in restricted waters. On April 23 2007, Sharon served a warrant on the Albert Collins residence and seized cash and property related to Collins' commercial paddlefish fishing operation.

The complaint states that on Oct, 15, 2008 Sharon received a Resident Roe Bearing Harvester's Permit and Resident Commercial Fishing License from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Sharon's Daily RoeBearing Fish Harvester's Transaction Report shows that from Nov. 10, 2008, through Feb. 22, 2010, Sharon sold about 464 pounds of paddlefish roe to Albert Collins.

The complaint states by participating in fishing activities with a person he had arrested as part of his official duties, Sharon failed to avoid conduct which may lead the general public to believe that he was using his position as a conservation officer to further his own interests.

The second count allegedly occurred in January 2008 and involved Sharon meeting with commercial fisherman Steve Kinder at the boat ramp in Carrollton. The document states that Kinder and Sharon discussed Kinder's desire to fish the area during the following fishing season. Kinder asked Sharon to provide the exact measurements of the restricted area.

On April 25, 2008, Kinder observed two commercial fishermen already in the spot discussed by him and Sharon. The two fishermen told Kinder that Sharon directed them to fish in the area in question. In November 2008 at the start of the commercial fishing season, Kinder allegedly discovered Sharon conducting commercial fishing activities in the same location in which Kinder told Sharon he was planning to begin fishing.

The complaint states that Sharon used information gained during his official duties while speaking to Kinder in confidence about the benefits of commercial fishing in waters at the confluence of the Kentucky and Ohio Rivers to benefit himself and others. In March, 2011, Kinder and his wife Cornelia Joyce Kinder and Kinder Caviar and Black Star Caviar were charged with trafficking in and falsely labeling illegally harvested paddlefish, according to the U.S. Department of Justice website.

The case is being investigated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Office of Law Enforcement, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Division Wildlife; and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. It is being prosecuted by the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of Ohio and the Environmental Crimes Section of the Environmental Natural Resources Division of the Department of Justice, according to the U.S. Department of Justice website.

Steffen said this charge could turn in to a criminal case for Sharon.

The third count of the Ethics Commission's findings said Sharon used his official position to give himself financial gain and to secure other privileges, advantages and exemptions for himself and others when on April 13, 2009, and Nov. 18, 2009 and again in 2010 on Jan. 14, March 5, April 1, 2, 5, 6 and 7, he and his designated helper Kenneth Burns were observed conducting commercial fishing activities on the Ohio River within 50 yards of the mouth of the Kentucky River, which is a restricted

Count four alleges that on March 5, 2010, conservation officers from the Indiana Department of Natural Resources (DNR) seized gill nets found in restricted waters at the confluence of the Kentucky and Ohio Rivers in Carrollton equipped with expired 2009 commercial fishing tags belonging to

On that same day, the document states that Sharon was confronted in front of his superior officers, Sgt. Greg Davis and Capt. Bobby Newman, by Indiana DNR officers Lt. Tony Stoll and Maj. Felix Hensley. Sharon informed the officers he had a valid 2010 Commercial Fishing License, but refused to show it to the officers. Sharon allegedly did not apply for a 2010 Commercial Fishing license on or after March 8, 2010. The findings state that Sharon said he had no other nets in the waters, however Indiana DNR officers later seized a net with expired 2009 commercial fishing tags that also belonged to Sharon within 50 yards of the mouth of the Little Kentucky River. Count five states that on April 6, 2010, Sharon was informed by his commanding officer Sgt. Greg Davis of the measurement of the restricted area around the confluence of the two rivers and was provided a map including the coordinates of the restricted fishing areas. Later that day, Sharon allegedly was observed measuring and moving his commercial fishing nets but leaving his nets within the restricted area. He was overheard by Indiana law enforcement officers speaking to Burns that he did not "give a damn what they think." Again on April 7, 2010, Sharon allegedly was observed measuring and moving his commercial fishing nets, but leaving them in restricted waters. He was again overheard telling Burns "I'll tell Greg (Davis) that I moved the net and f--- what the rest of them think." Count six in the document alleges that on that same day, Indiana DNR officers Corporal Steve Kinne and Officer Corey Norrod issued Sharon a citation for commercially fishing in restricted waters and seized gill nets as well as over 12 pounds of paddlefish roe. Sharon told the officers he had been given permission by his commanding officers to fish in the restricted area and that he would have his agency defend him in court, the document states.

Count seven states on March 22, 2011, Sharon without permission or the knowledge of his supervisors, while in uniform and driving his commissioned vehicle, allegedly left his assigned county of Gallatin in District 5 and travelled to Oldham County in District 3 to meet with Oldham County Attorney John Carter to influence the prosecution of David Cottrell, a commercial fisherman. Based on a citation brought by Indiana DNR officers, Cottrell was charged with failure to maintain the required number of commercial fishing tags on his gill nets placed in the Ohio River. Cottrell is the son-in-law of Jessica Schigur, the fish roe buyer whom Sharon has sold fish roe to from November 2010 to the present. Sharon reportedly told Carter that the offenses for which Cottrell had been charged were not offenses the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is interested in prosecuting.

The Ethics Commission alleges that Sharon was attempting to influence a matter that involved the same Indiana DNR officers who charged Sharon with his commercial fishing law violations.

Count eight alleges that on April 17, 2011, Sharon told Barrett Brewer, the conservation officer assigned to Oldham County, to not get involved with the prosecution of Cottrell in Oldham County for the commercial fishing violation from March 2011. It states that Sharon told Brewer that he was handling the matter and Brewer need not get involved.

In the final count, the Ethics Commission alleges that on Oct. 21, 2008, Sharon applied for a commercial fishing license and roe bearing harvesters permit with the department. Sharon's supervisors instructed him that he was not to participate in official duties or enforcement activities in the counties in which he conducted commercial fishing and to avoid commercial fishing activities in his assigned county of Gallatin. From November 2008 through April 2010, Sharon was observed on multiple occasions by public and law enforcement officers participating in commercial fishing activities in Carroll County. From October 2008 through present, Sharon issued about 24 citations in Carroll County, about seven of which involve fish-

to have, it is quite scary." The size of these new judicial centers does concern Keith. With a population of about 11,000, Owen County will have a courthouse only 12,000 square feet less than adjacent Grant County, which has double the population. She said the county eliminated some of the features recommended by the Kentucky Administrative Office of the Courts.

Built to last for 100 years Kentucky Administrative Office of the Courts and local project development boards plan the judicial centers and use a formula to determine the size based on caseloads and population projections, according to AOC staff.

"I do share the concern of how expensive these buildings are," Keith said. "They will say they are building them to last for 100 years. I see their point there, too." Before Grant County

"I think the AOC could do a better job seeing how they could adapt current courthouses as opposed to building new structures."

- Rep. Rick Rand

opened its $16.6 million judicial center in 2010, District Judge Thomas Funk worked out of his car and home for a time after he was appointed in 1999. The new courthouses may be big, but they are built to last, Funk said.

"I think it is economical for the future," Funk said. "We will need every square foot. We will grow into them really quickly. People will move down here in Grant County. The population will expand down it." The Administrative Office of the Courts overbuilt Pendleton County's courthouse by about 20 percent said Henry Bertram, Pendleton County judgeexecutive and chairman of the project development board for the Pendleton County Courthouse. This will ensure it will last for the next century, he said. The previous Pendleton County courthouse lasted more than 150 years since it was last renovated in 1854, Bertram said.

"When the last time you upgraded a court facility was in 1854, it way outlasted the 100-year plan for it," Bertram said. "These new facilities, hopefully it will last just as long.'

96,000-squarefoot, $29 million addition to the Campbell County Courthouse in Newport will open in May attached to the back of the original courthouse built in 1884. It will have eight courtrooms, compared to the five in the old building, and five elevators, compared to the one currently used by everyone. A structural engineer from California designed the building and put in a rare feature called a drag bar in the elevator and stairwells that will make the building stable during earthquakes and other cataclysms, said Matthew Grayson, construction manager for the project.

"Our staircase over here was very labor intensive" Grayson said. "We had a lot of work to do there. What caught us off guard was something called a drag bar. Our contractors have never seen it."

A courthouse should instill pride in the community and respect for the law, Funk said. "It is a source of county pride and represents the justice system in the community," Funk said. A significant piece of debt

The financial impact these massive projects have had, however, depends on who you ask. Gov. Steve Beshear's proposed budget for fiscal year 2013 has $121 million going to pay the debt on courthouse construction.

It accounts for a significant piece of the state debt, said State Rep. Rick Rand, D-Bedford, chairman of the House Appropriations and Revenue committee. The state pays the debt through rent paid to each of the counties. Counties use the rent money to pay bonds they issued to construct the projects. "I think since Justice

John Minton has been the chief justice, he's really slowed the process down, which I agree with, and is not authorizing as many courthouses," Rand said. "They're slowing down the beginning of construction as well as reducing the sizes of them."

The House, in its proposed two-year budget next year, has only budgeted $4 million to furnish new judicial centers already under construction.

Planning has started for two new judicial centers in Henry and Nicholas counties but the construction hasn't been funded, Rand said. The House put language in the budget to require Henry and Nicholas counties do a feasibility study to determine if a remodeling of the old courthouse would suffice, Rand said.

"I think the AOC could do a better job seeing how they could adapt current courthouses as opposed to building new structures," Rand said followed with a single to left field. Trimble made a pitching change, bringing in Leyna Ritter for starter Hannah Lira.

With one out, Brittany Yocum laid down a sacrifice bunt, scoring Lindsey, 2-2.

Ritter struck out the next batter and forced a fly out to second base, leaving two Carroll runners on base.

Trimble's McKenzie Dunlap led off the top of the fifth with a double into left field. Emily Black hit a sharp grounder to the shortstop, but the throw to first base was dropped and the ball went into the Carroll dugout, allowing McKenzie Dunlap to score the go-ahead run.

The Lady Raiders threatened again in the top of the sixth as Hannah Davis hit a single to start off the inning. With one out, Jessie Dunlap hit a fly ball over Williamson's head at second base, but Williamson made a spectacular play, laying out for the catch and flipping around to throw out Davis at first, ending the inning. Hawkins said her play was the "highlight" of the game and gave the Lady Panthers an opportunity at the end of the game to still pull out a win. "We're making a few good plays like that in games, which makes me really feel good that we're capable of making those," he said. "Now we just have to learn from it."

Neither team scored in their next at-bats, taking the game down to Carroll's final three outs. With two outs, Ogden hit the ball hard to left field. The ball bounced off of the left fielder's glove and bounced toward the fence. Ogden made it to third, but would not get any further, as Ritter struck out the next batter, securing a Lady Raider victory.

KRISTIN SHERRARD/The News-Democrat

Kayla Williamson makes a diving catch and then turns the double play at first base during the top of the sixth inning against Trimble County.

Black said she thought the difference in the game was her team's ability to make plays at the right time and to hit the ball. "We've really tried hard this year to work on our hitting," she said. "That seems to be where we've struggled the last several years, so this year we've really focused on our hitting and tonight it really paid off."

On the other side of the field, Hawkins lamented his team's inability to hit the ball well. He also acknowledged that his team's youth hurt during certain situations. The Lady Panthers have just one senior, no juniors and the rest sophomores, freshmen and seventh graders.

"We had some young girls in some crucial situations that didn't catch signs or didn't execute the way veterans would, but we can expect that," he said. "I'm not blaming them; it's just the way it turned out. It wasn't their fault.

"You can't take anything away from Trimble County. They came in and played a pretty sound ballgame. They made the plays they needed to make; they hit the ball when they needed to hit it. ... Our hats are just off to Trimble County. They outplayed us."

Black said starting pitcher Lira did a really nice job in her first outing as a starter. After she thought

Carroll had seen enough, she decided to bring in Ritter, who she said did a nice job closing out the game.

Black, who was an assistant for nine years, said she is really enjoying her new position as head coach. "Their kids are great kids, and I'm learning from them as well," she said. "I think this is going to change our season around. We kept telling them tonight when we started, we can only go up from where we are because we have two losses. So beating Carroll County will be a big step for us."

Hawkins said he is going to re-think some of his strategies moving forward and said he is still learning about his team. "Softball is such an unforgiving game that one mistake or two mistakes can cost you the game."

The head coach said he told his players after the game that there will be more nights like this one where the hitting is just not there, but they have to find other ways to win.

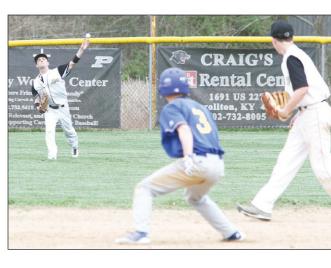

"You're not going to get the hits when you need to or hit the ball the way you're capable of," Hawkins said. "You've just got to find other ways to score and to make it happen and put pressure on the defense. Hopefully we learned something from this ... game that will help us win another game."

at-bat. Wise was 1-4 with a single, but also perfectly executed a sacrifice bunt when his team needed it.

Mefford said he was a little disappointed with his team's hitting because of how well they hit against Grant County earlier in the week. "Otherwise, we stayed in the game. We caught the balls we were supposed to catch, we made the plays we were supposed to make so a win is a win. I'm happy with it."
